Red Bobs Wheat Gives Good Results

Nick Taltinger, the well-known seed grower of Claresholm, Alta., has had good success with Red Bobs. In conversation with a Guide representative in Calgary some time ago he gave some of his experience with it, and was requested to send a contribution embodying these experiences to The Guide for publication. Mr.

Taltinger is a careful observer and student of seed-growing, as his letter shows. He says:

I may say that I have grown Red Bobs for several years, and it has given me good results.

It is very difficult to defend the merits of Red Bobs against the odds of the experiments in Manitoba. It seems that Red Bobs has not done well from the start in Manitoba. It may also be possible that it was put on the market a few years too soon, that is before its time was fixed. The irregularity in the length of straw may be against it as a type, but its yield and quality of grain makes it superior to many types.

When it comes to choosing a type of wheat most adapted as a whole for the three western prairie provinces one will not make a mistake by using Marquis. Nevertheless Red Bobs and Kitchener have their merits, and if grown where they belong will produce great yields; I may say out-lying Marquis wheat.

But you know that with Marquis as well as with other varieties of grain, you must employ hand selection, head-row selection, and other best-known methods to keep it true to its characteristics as to yield, maturity, size of head, etc., and to keep its efficiency at top notch. Otherwise in a few years you will have a very poor sample as to type.

Furthermore, it is a well-known fact that any plant should, or rather must be grown where the soil and climatic conditions are best adapted in order to produce the best results. I am sorry to say that it is not done very often, except by accident. Whenever a new type comes on the market well advertised it is bought at a fancy price and planted anywhere through the Dominion or Canada regardless of the adaptability to any locality. If it happens to be the right place it is a success, but if otherwise it is a failure.

For illustration, say one planted Ruby, which is certainly a good wheat in the dry areas of the south or southwestern prairie provinces or Red Pile or Kitchener in the far north no sound-minded man would expect that either one of these good types would make anything but complete failure. Even in the same locality each variety should be planted in the most adapted soil. You cannot grow pineapples or oranges in Canada, but they are grown elsewhere.

No early variety should be planted in a dry district or on light soil. Kitchener or Red Pile should be used. As it takes those types longer and moisture at any time to form and moisture at any time to form the seed. And then when it comes to a point where moisture is lacking the plant will rush the period of producing kernels. That is why Marquis, Red Bobs and Ruby, planted in a light or dry soil or in a dry year will not yield as much as Kitchener or Red Pile on the same soil.

Will Sow 300 Acres To Red Bobs
I have been growing Red Bobs for several years, and it has given splendid results, so much so that next spring I will sow 300 acres or it and 200 acres to Kitchener on lighter soil, may be attributed to having fairly heavy soil, and growing it on well-has out-yielded Marquis on my farm, also in my neighbourhood, on similar soil and cultivation.

Here are the comparative yields on my farm in 1920 on good summer-fallow:

Variety	per acre	Days maturing
Ruby	37 bushels	86
Red Bobs	44 1/2 "	97
Kitchener	39 "	108
Marquis	32 "	104

The outstanding yields for any variety should be taken for a period of five years, as any one year may be very favorable to any one of those varieties and detrimental to others.

Each of these varieties have their merits, and produce good yields of grain in localities where soil and climatic conditions are well adapted to them. Either one will be a failure if grown differently.

It must be left to the wheat grower to decide which variety is most suited to his own locality. Any one may be superior in yield to the others, according to the adaptability to that very location.

Alberta's 1920 Crop

Whatever the cause of the depression which has hit the agricultural industry of the province, and of the continent for the matter of that, it is not the fault of nature in Alberta during the year of ups and downs just terminated.

While men made conditions and men themselves have been undergoing upheavals and turmoil as a result of war and readjustment, friend nature started out last summer to make amends for previous misdeeds and so far as Alberta is concerned came down the course in a blaze of glory at harvest time. Had prices held at anything like the level of the past few years the province would have produced more wealth from the fields during 1920 than in any season in the history of Alberta.

Official returns for the crop year are not yet available from the provincial department of agriculture since threshing reports cannot be finally assembled until late in January but the estimate of the crop statistician is accurate enough to give a fair idea of what the province actually produced in the year now closing.

This estimate from the provincial department of agriculture places the total value of farm products at $191,297,210 for 1920. Of the total the wheat crop of 87,601,385 bushels at a base of $1.34 a bushel reaches $116,074,483 acres of an average yield of 21.50 bushels per acre. The 38,000 acres of winter wheat averaged 24 bushels per acre for the province.

The acreage in oats for the season reached 3,089,700 and from these acres was harvested approximately 113,953,450 bushels which means a return of $38,065,104.00 at an average price of 32 cents a bushel. Barley is estimated at 1,945,972 bushels from 430,000 acres, which at 60 cents a bushel means a revenue of $8,075,743.20. The average yield of oats is given as 38.50 and barley 28 bushels per acre.

Flax was sown on 103,750 acres with an estimated yield of 555,258 bushels and an approximate valuation of $1,283,287.50. Rye was a better crop with 160,960 acres planted and an estimated return of 3,822,800 bushels, which at $1.25 per bushel would produce $4,778,500.00. Mixed grains on 8,398 acres are given as producing 258,238 bushels, or a return of $123,115.00.

Alberta made a splendid record with potato production last season with 43,000 acres planted and an average estimated yield of 178 bushels per acre, a total of 7,655,000 bushels for the province. Valued at $1 per bushel the crop has helped materially in "carrying on" in agricultural circles and likewise in general finances of the province.

Other root crops also came through the season with vigor producing approximately 3,075,000 bushels from 12,300 acres and giving an estimated revenue of $3860,000.

The grand total of the acre in grain and field crops in the province for the year was 16,381,877 acres.

Supplementing the field returns for the year are the incomes from other sources on the farm and the forest. Animals slaughtered and sold are given as $38,000,000.00; dairy products as $34,000,000.00; the wool clip (1,740,232 lbs) as $730,895.98.. proceeds from game and fur as $2,250,000.00; poultry and products as $6,000,000.00; and the returns from horticulture as $2,286,000.00; making a grand total valuation for all farm products of $274,186,197.08 for the year.

In addition to the revenue from the fields and kindred production there are approximately 741,851 horses in the province with a valuation of $66,766,550.00 over 305,607 milk cows valued at $24,448,500.00; other cattle valued at $15,516,700.00 to the number of 1,050,334; sheep and lambs numbering 383,424 with a valuation of $2,824,240.00; swine with a valuation of $5,731,120.00 for approximately 286,556 head and no less than 2,399,855 poultry with a valuation of $2,878,826.00. The total valuation of the live stock on the farms of Alberta is therefore about $156,177,036.00 at the present value.

Therefore an admittedly conservative estimate of the value of the farm production and of the live stock on the farms reaches the magnificent grand total of $430,362,233.08 for the year now slipping into the past.

Alberta hardly went "broke" at farming in 1920.

SOMETHING NEW FOR THE LADIES

Just think! A real live fox for a neck scarf. This is a fact—not an uncommon sight at the big International Silver Fox Exhibition in Montreal last week. The lady here has a genuine silver fox around her neck, and judging from appearance the animal seems quite reconciled to being used for such a novel purpose.

Bright Prospects Ahead

If ever there was a period in the history of Canada when sane thinking and common sense were needed it is now. This is no time to forsake the beaten paths of experience and sound principles for the will o' the wisp of speculation and ill-considered theoretical experiments.

Neither is it time to lose our nerve and become panic-stricken. Canadians are not bred that way and whatever the future has in store we are ready to face calmly, with an unbounded faith in the future of our country.

During the past year we have heard a great deal about the aftermath of the war. We are now experiencing and beginning to realize what it means. We are going through the throes and birth-pains of the adjustment period with its falling markets, unemployment and world-wide unsettled conditions.

For five years the doctrine of the simple life, "hard work and thrift," "produce and save," has been preached in this country, and to a far-reaching extent it has been lived up. Our people have been producing to their utmost capacity all through the years of the war and since. They have also been carefully and methodically putting by their earnings, and the per capita savings of Alberta is greater today than ever before. The large amount of Victory Bonds held, Government Savings Certificates, and increased savings bank deposits will prove this. The people during the past five years have not been indolent nor extravagant, and they have made the most of their opportunities.

It is rather unfortunate that the falling prices caught us with our season's produce, to a large extent, unmarketed, but in the general world wide depression we could not expect to escape unscathed, and while, at the present time, our markets are somewhat demoralized and the hope of improvement in the immediate future is not bright, we must depend upon the assurance that the world needs our grain and livestock, and our agricultural industry, when conducted along progressive and legitimate lines, will continue to prosper and expand.

For awhile there may be hard sledding ahead, and it behooves every man to conserve his strength, lighten his load and be prepared; but nevertheless there is nothing in the outlook to weaken our confidence in the great future of the Province of Alberta.

Wheat Via Panama

One of the movements in the grain trade that is at the present time creating very considerable attention is the first shipment of Canadian wheat that is being sent to the United Kingdom via Vancouver and the Panama Canal. There are many in the trade who predict that it will be the forerunner of a very considerable business in the future, and energetic steps are being taken by Vancouver people in that direction. One of the principal matters in that connection is the establishment of a Grain Exchange at the coast city.

Alberta brokers, generally, are just now keeping an open mind as to how this route will work out as compared to the haulage to the west coast and shipment via an Atlantic port. Much will undoubtedly depend upon the canal dues, which might be so high as to militate against a large amount of traffic. In the present shipment that is going forward the rates are approximately the same as the overland and Atlantic haul. It is pointed out, however, that before next doubtfully be a very considerable readjustment made in ocean freights, and while that would of course apply to the Atlantic, it is argued that there rate as far as the Pacific was concerned owing to the longer ocean distance and the shorter land haul to the Pacific coast.

LIVERPOOL FROM THE AIR

An excellent aerial view of the city. On the extreme right (foreground) can be seen the entrance to the famous Shipshape Canal. The recent fires in Liverpool which destroyed eighteen cotton warehouses and other buildings, are thought to be the work of Sinn Féin incendiaries.

95,704 in 1915 to 108,178 in 1920, an increase of 12,474 voters, the dry majority for the whole province has decreased by only 2,190. If the provincial government felt in 1915 that it had made a mandate from the people, as it certainly did, surely in the face of the present majority, and the statement made by Premier Stewart during the last session of the house, it has now a similar mandate.

Chauvin Agricultural Society Column Cost Of Production

An interesting bulletin has been issued by the Chauvin Agricultural Society, which contains much valuable information for the farmer. It shows the results of a co-operative experiment covering two groups of farms; one group of 113 farms and another group of 354. The object of the work was to obtain reasonably accurate information as to the cost of producing wheat and some conclusions were drawn, which, while not final, are most instructive. One item which seems to have been underestimated was the charge for the use of land. This was put at $3.10 per acre, disregarding entirely the loss of fertility resulting from production of the crop. Other items of cost considered were seed, man labor, horse labor, machinery, twine, fertilizer, crop insurance, threshing and management.

The record covers the year 1919, which it is conceded was an unfavorable year for crop production. The cost per bushel would therefore be high but the relative figures would be about average.

The first conclusion is that the yield per acre is the largest factor influencing the cost of production. On 113 from $1.85 to $6.82 per bushel, depending upon the yield per acre, which varied from 1 to 17.5 bushels per acre. Fifty per cent. of the wheat produced on this group of farms was raised on an average cost of $5.00 per bushel, while the other fifty per cent. cost over $3.00 per bushel.

Of the 354 farm group the average cost was $19.88 per acre and $2.75 per bushel, or $35.47 per acre, and from $1.21 to 14.38 per bushel. The average yield per acre was 7.5 bushels, the range in yield was from one to 17.5 bushels per acre. The wide range in yield and cost points directly to the value of increasing average yield as a means of reducing the cost of production, and thus increasing the profits from wheat-growing.

Feed Grain To Stock

A very prominent western financial authority has been urging the prairie farmers to feed as much as possible of the raw grains during the winter and even to buy stock at present prices at which to feed it.

Feed is fairly plentiful this fall and the price of cattle is remarkably low. The gentleman in question is the manager of a great Canadian bank and prophesies that prices will go up very materially towards spring and that farmers must feed for the winter can hardly fail to make a good profit. Conditions would seem to justify this conclusion and western farmers can hardly do better than profit by this advice. Under normal conditions feeding for the spring wheat market should be a good side line for a farmer and not practiced as much as it should be. Anything which can be done to stimulate the live-stock industry is a good thing for the country.

Authority in question is likely a well considered one and is well worthy of the farmers.

Retaliation

If the United States so far forgets itself as to place a tariff which will have the effect of an embargo upon grain and cattle who will be the most serious losers?

The Canadian farmer, without any doubt.

There is no question about that. We should meet that, says the high tariff enthusiast, by placing a higher tariff on the goods which come from United States to Canada.

And who would be most greatly injured by a policy of that kind.

Why the Canadian farmer, of course. He would have to pay higher prices for his goods.

If the United States government should be so unwise as to adopt a fiscal policy which would injure the Canadian Farmer then according to the High Tariff reasoner, we should meet that policy by adopting a policy which should injure the Canadian farmer even more. That is the policy of retaliation.

It was Gladstone, it is not, who gave a good description of retaliation. The ordinary man meets a blow on the cheek, with a blow for the man who smote him. By Christian doctrine, the man who received a blow on the cheek, turns the other cheek to the assailant. But by the policy of retaliation, the man who is smitten on one cheek straightway smites himself on the other cheek.

The action of the government in cutting out the licenses of drug stores which have been violating the law, and turning their stores into saloons is the very best. It should have a salutary effect. This is one very effective way of bringing offenders to time.

Alberta Social Service Wants It Bore Dry

With the date of the legislature now definitely fixed, the government's policy in connection with the liquor question is expected to come up for discussion and adoption almost at once. It is understood that the Moderation league is planning to present its side of the case to the government again, while the general views of the prohibition forces have already made known to Premier Stewart.

The question at issue is likely to be the interpretation that is to be put upon the use of the recent referendum that the vote was not sufficiently decisive to warrant the drastic action suggested in the premier's dramatic position of bone-dry legislation, and on the other side of the argument the position is taken that the people expressed themselves at the polls as overwhelmingly in favor of absolute prohibition.

A statement given out by the Alberta Social Service league makes a comparison and analysis of the figure of the plebiscite last October. There were 62,772 votes on the dry side in 1920 as compared with 52,295 in 1915. The wet votes were 44,176 and 37,009 respectively. The fact that 4,447 more voters declared for prohibition this year than in the vote of five years ago with all the soldiers back, is interpreted as a decisive indication

"To define this vote," says the Social Service statement. "It means that with an increased vote from
